Re: Petitions for Redress of Grievances

Dear President Bush,

This letter constitutes formal service of seven (7) First Amendment Petitions For Redress of Grievances.

The Petitions have been signed by me and thousands of other American citizens. I respectfully request, with all due force and urgency that you properly respond, as required by the Constitution, to these Petitions for Redress as requested below.

The attached CD-ROM disc contains the seven Petitions for Redress of Grievances regarding matters of grave importance to our nation. The Petitions document numerous and extensive constitutional torts committed by the federal government and seek admissions. These abuses of limited and delegated power threaten both the Liberty of the People and the future of the Republic.

Please know that the People will not be long denied their Rights. To begin, the People possess the Right to peacefully enforce their Right to hold the government accountable to the Constitution by withdrawing their support of and obedience to the federal Government, should the Government fail to responsively respond.

As my elected representative to the High Office of the President of the United States of America, I urge you to embrace the history, nature, extent, and significance of the People's Right to Petition for Redress of Grievances, and the far-reaching implications it holds for constitutional governance carried out in decency and good order. Toward that end I am enclosing an informational disc that contains eleven Law Review articles that address the Right to Petition and copies of legal briefs from the landmark federal lawsuit where the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit will soon declare its interpretation of the Rights of the People and the Obligations of the Government within the meaning of the last ten words of the First Amendment. This will be the first time in history that a court has declared the meaning of this, the “capstone Right.” The Founders knew the meaning of the Right:

“If money is wanted by Rulers who have in any manner oppressed the People, they may retain it until their grievances are redressed, and thus peaceably procure relief, without trusting to despised petitions or disturbing the public tranquility.”

Journals of the Continental Congress, 1:105-113 (1774)

A delegation of people representing most if not all of the states, including myself, will assemble in Lafayette Park across from the White House at 3 PM, Friday, March 30, 2007 to await your response. Please send a representative to at least let us know when we might expect to receive a response to these Petitions for Redress.

Respectfully Yours,

Robert Schulz
Chairman
